

Eulogy for arayti - Asia

In Spring of 2019 I finished knitting an intricate lace shawl and found out it was way too small for me to use. Virginia said it would be large enough for her, so, much to her delight, I just sent it to her

I did exactly what she would have done - noticed something would bring someone joy and without much deliberation gave it to them.

She later wrote that Jay is jealous of her international friends, but the truth is that we, the knitters, crocheters, spinners and sewers, had a friend like that and our partners could be just as jealous of a wonderful, freely giving online friend

The world has lost a shining star
